

The HIGH-Z 21-cm Global Spectrum Experiment

Jeffrey B. Peterson⁽¹⁾ for the HIGH-Z Collaboration

(1) Dept. of Physics Carnegie Mellon Univ., 5000 Forbes Ave, Pittsburgh PA
15208

HIGH-Z is a 21-cm all-sky spectrometer that covers the three-octave range from 25 to 200 MHz. The instrument targets the global signal resulting from absorption of cosmic background photon by the 21-cm line of neutral hydrogen during the first stars era. The novel features of the instrument will be described and data from initial field tests will be presented.